Dear Sir:

Recently, I completed a 20-page term paper on the recent rebirth of the CIA. In doing so, I uncovered a few pressing questions, and ask for the answers only for personal satisfaction. If any of these questions breach on the infringement of national security, and I am sure some of them do, then just forget them.

Question 1: In 1951, when the CIA was supporting Ramon Magsaysay against the Huk guerillas, who won? I never could find a shred of information as to what happened to the Huks.

Question 2: The anti-Communist Cuban police force, BRAC; was it ever discontinued?

Question 3: When the CIA was aiding the Indonesian rebels in the Celebes in their struggle against President Sukarno, a U. S. pilot was shot down. The CIA claimed he was a "soldier of fortune." Was he, or was that just a cover-up?

Question 4: Did the CIA kill Allende, or was it a suicide?

Question 3: What was the CIA's role in the manhunt and eventual execution of Che Guevara?

And one last question: What was the story behind Program Phoenix? All the sources I encountered just made passing references to it.

Sincerely,

DCI
